

The feed.blade.php file contains the layout for a feed page in a content-serving application.

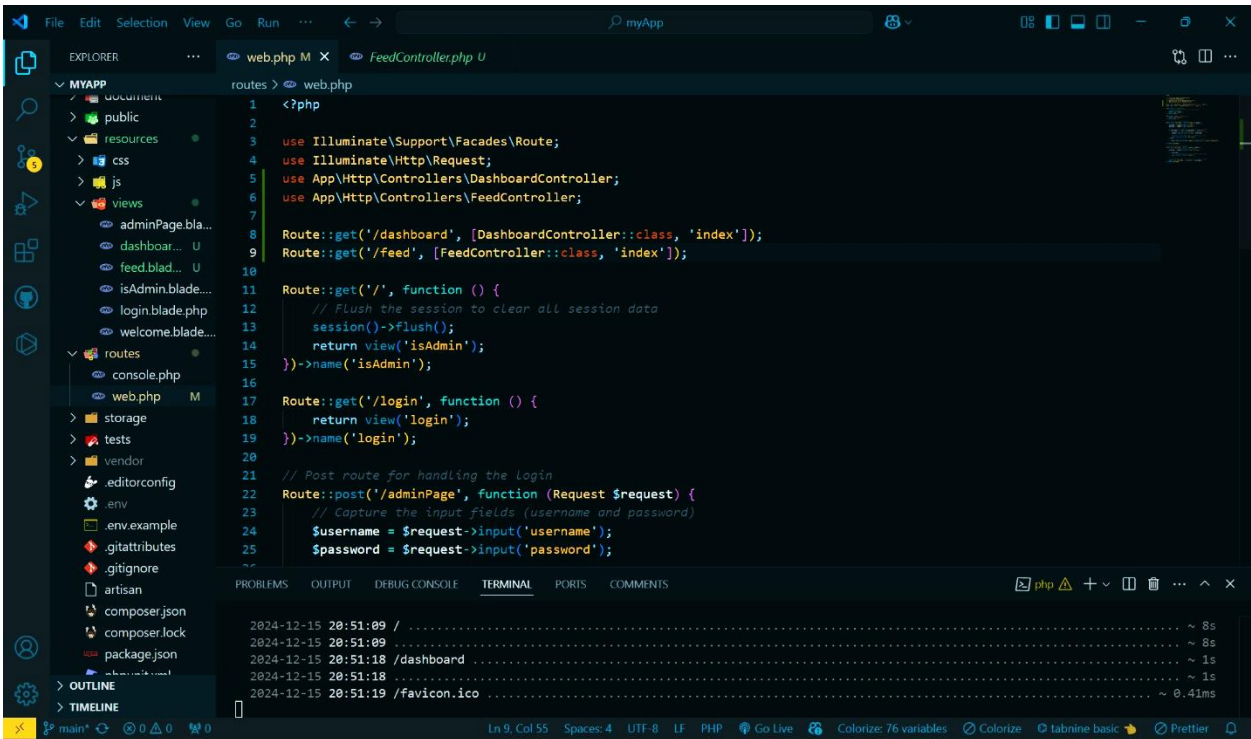

The dashboard.blade.php file displays data provided by the simulated database through the dashboardController file.

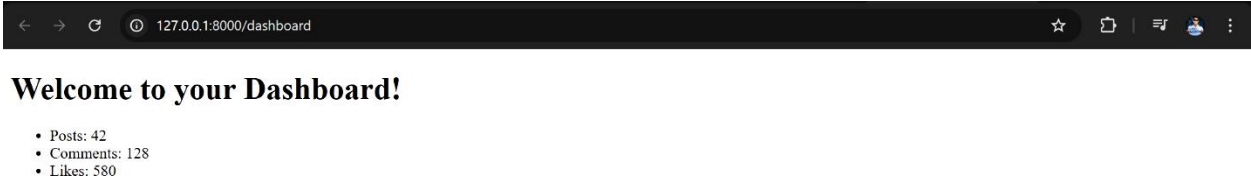

The feedController file simulates passing data from a database to the feed.blade.php view.

This is the routing, notice that both dashboard and feed files have their own separate url appends

The dashboard.blade.php view displays the data passed to it by the dashboardController when accessed by the user.

The feed.blade.php file displays the data passed by the feedController when the user visits the page

